

listen a minute dotcom qualifications qualifications or sorry important piece days many years ago a university degree was enough a b a or b s c would guarantee you a good job not now not even a master's degree is enough these days it seems everyone has a master's degree some of the jobs i want now require a p h d it's also not enough nowadays to be happy with the qualifications you have you have to keep your qualifications up to date requalify get new qualifications it seems life has become one long certificate chase especially so now that many people will have several careers in their life i know someone who got a degree in physics then became an accountant didn't like it and started to be a lawyer he's now studying for his teaching license